

2 Events, 2 Speakers, 1 Day!

ISIS (Information Science + Information Studies) Presents

A lunchtime event with Scott Lash & Celia Lury
Lunch will be provided!

Suggested Readings from Global Culture Industry (PDF) at <http://isis.duke.edu/events/upcoming.html>

“A Conversation About Global Culture Industry”

Friday, Feb. 29

12:00-2:00pm

John Hope Franklin Center, Room 240

Co-sponsored by the Jenkins Chair in New Technologies & Society

The Literature Program Presents A Symposium:
“Global Culture Industry & New Media”

Scott Lash

"China Culture Industry: In Search of the Universal"

and

Celia Lury

"Thinking Topologically About Culture"

Participants include:

Michael Hardt - Program in
Literature, Dept. of Romance Studies

Tim Lenoir—Jenkins Chair in New Technologies & Society, ISIS,
Program in Literature

Friday, Feb. 29

4:00pm

Upper East Side, East Union Building, East Campus

Co-sponsored by the Department of Cultural Anthropology, the Center for International Studies, the Jenkins Chair in New Technologies & Society, and the John Hope Franklin Humanities Institute

Scott Lash is a professor and the director of the Center for Cultural Studies at Goldsmith College, University of London

Celia Lury is a professor of Sociology at Goldsmiths College, University of London. They have co-authored the book, Global Culture Industry: The Mediation of Things (Polity Press 2007)

For more information about the lunchtime event, please contact Cristin Paul at cmryman@duke.edu

For more information about the lectures, please contact Maria Maschauer at 684-5255 or go to <http://literature.aas.duke.edu/news/>